Chris Glover

Chris is a member of the British Osteopathic Association and is registered Osteopath with the General Osteopathic council. He gained a Masters of Osteopathy at the London school of Osteopathy.

As a passionate dancer and gymnast, Chris often found himself injured and unable to enjoy his interests, this lead him to research different methods of injury management and avoidance and it was during this period that he found himself on the table of an osteopath. This experience, and his growing interest into the functions of the human body, inspired Chris to retrain in the field of osteopathy.

Chris is not only focused on the resolution of his patient's pain but also on their overall health and wellbeing. He will work with you to help manage your health concerns and enable you to get back to the things you enjoy.
