Dominic Rushmore

Dominic graduated from the College of Integrated Chinese Medicine, Licentiate in Acupuncture and became a Member of British Acupuncture Council in May 1999. Since then he has been practicing acupuncture in Northamptonshire. He has actively continued his training in Chinese Medicine attending post graduate courses ranging from sports medicine, musculo-skeletal disorders, menstrual disorders and fertility as well as further study in Tui Na.

Dominic's interest in and practice of oriental health systems developed over several decades. His studies include Tai Chi & Qigong, Shiatsu, Tui Na and other forms of massage. Studying Acupuncture at the college of Integrated Chinese Medicine means he is qualified in the practice of both the Five Element and the Traditional Chinese Medicine schools of acupuncture. In addition to his acupuncture practice he is a Tai Chi and Qigong teacher and is constantly seeking to deepen his understanding of these fascinating and ancient arts which balance and develop the body's natural energies.
