Joanna Woodall

Aromatherapy is the use of essential oils to maintain good health and revitalize the body, mind and spirit. Combined with therapeutic massage, it is a deeply relaxing and comforting treatment.

Joanna has been practising for ten years and trained with The Institute of Traditional Herbal Medicine and Aromatherapy. Her training incorporates the principals of Traditional Chinese Medicine, which emphasises treatment of the whole person and the underlying root of the presenting condition.

In her practice she draws on her own experiences and her lifelong interest and study of all types of holistic and natural healing. She has a practical and sensitive approach to her practice and applies her skills intuitively and sensitively.
